SEYMOUR, IND.

SPRINGTIME, despite the thermometer's recent evidence, is really here.

Even the abject stir about their wretched premises, plant morning glories and such simple flowers in their tiny spaces of ground, straighten up the leaning pickets left from the kindling needs of the later frosty mornings. Good housewives tie towels about their heads, gird up their narrow skirts and chase the dust of winter from their rooms. The laziest pick and trifle with their belongings to fix themselves better to face the changing seasons.

"Clean-up!" is the phrase.

Why, not enlarge it? Why not "paint up?"

And if "paint up" why not do it so it will LAST and PAY?

Painting is another "art preservative." Rightly done, it saves repair, adds to length of property-life, increases property-attractiveness, brings to the tenant's lips the pleased smile, to the righteous landlord the wholesome feeling of duty well performed.

Between ourselves, there's room for lots on lots of paint here in Ourltown. Well applied, in colors judiciously selected, it would conceal a multitude of architectural and sanitary sins from the discerning eyes of tourists passing this way.

Look over your OWN house, or home, or business structure.

Don't YOU agree? Try our prescription—"Clean Up and Paint Up."

Self-Respect and Paint

A thousand American cities and towns have taken up the National Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign. It has been indorsed by thousands of civic, commercial and women's organizations all over the nation. The cities that have made themselves a part of the movement are cleaner and better cities because of it.

From time to time the Department of Agriculture urges upon the people of the country and the small town the necessity of the use of paint. Beauty and economy are the reasons dwelt upon by the Government experts. Add to beauty and economy the fact that paint has a sanitary value, and the arguments apply with added force to the big cities.

The house that is painted is the better for it. A neighborhood that has cleaned up and painted up is a better one in which to live. Paint makes for self-respect and justifiable pride.—St. Louis Republic.

"Clean Up and Paint Up."

By Rev. A. E. Stockdale.

Do you find a bit of dust?
Clean it up! Clean it up!
Do you see a blight of rust?
Rub it up! Rub it up!
If the paint is getting old,
New and fresh is being sold,
For the town has now been told
In a slogan clear and bold That she surely, surely must Clean it up—Paint it up.

Are some buildings on the blink?
Clean 'em up—Paint 'em up!
Are the spoutings in a kink?
Slick 'em up—Spic 'em up!
Are the ashes in a heap?

Do the pavings need a sweep?
Is the lawn the kind to keep?
If you really want to sleep
With a resty, easy wink,
Clean 'em up—Paint 'em up!

Are the window glasses gray?
Wash 'em up—Wash 'em up!
Has the rubbish gone astray?
Burn it up—Burn it up!
Buy a little spade and rake,
Give the muscles all a shake,
For the lawn and garden's sake,
Never mind the pain and ache,
And Outtown will in a day
Be cleaned up to stay.

Great interest is developing in Clean Up week in Seymour. From present indications the teams will have plenty of hauling when they start. About 2500 cards have been signed by residents agreeing to have all rubbish ready for the teams early Saturday morning. Only one card was to be signed from each home, but after allowing for duplicates this means that practically every lot and alley in Seymour will be cleaned and ready for inspection Saturday afternoon.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION.

There seems to be little outward change in the Mexican situation. The press dispatches say that conditions are favorable for an amicable adjustment of differences and that the South American envoys, constituting the board of mediation, are hopeful that the conference arranged at Niagara Falls, Ontario, will result in a complete settlement. Besides adjusting differences between this country and Mexico, the mediators are also hoping to settle internal differences in that country. It is hardly possible that this can be done at once. We are also lead to believe that the war department must be somewhat doubtful as to the work to be accomplished by the mediators. While the present plans are being discussed and outwardly there is no display of hostility upon the part of United States, the war department is quietly preparing for trouble in case it should be necessary to issue a call for troops. Every one of course hopes that such action will not be necessary for war in Mexico would probably mean years of fighting. There is also a likelihood that the United States would be required to take over Mexico and this should be avoided if possible.

The rebels are gradually but surely surrounding Huerta's army and the attempt to seize Mexico City may be made at any time. Carranza, the leader of the constitutionalists, evidently believes that Huerta's power and influence is weakened and that he will soon be able to defeat the forces of the provisional president. It is likely because of this belief that Carranza refuses to consent to the mediation plans.

As it seems to us conditions in Mexico cannot be placed on a basis of permanent improvement and advancement until other countries have control of the affairs. Because of the character of the Mexican people, the revolutions will continue until the leaders of the various factions are fully convinced that the government can not be overthrown by force. The strength of any government depends upon loyalty and patriotism. If a protectorate could be formed by several of the foremost nations of the world and could have direct supervision over the government in Mexico, conditions would likely show a marked improvement. Until this or some similar step is taken the Mexican government will remain unstable and fighting among the factions can be expected for years to come.

BOLSTERING UP HOPE.

At various times the Indianapolis Star has made some laughable and ridiculous excuses in its effort to bolster up the Progressive party but its attempt in this morning's issue appears to be the last stand before ultimate defeat. The editorial below published was occasioned by the exceedingly light vote cast by the new party in the Marion county primary Tuesday and will certainly not embue the few members left with a great amount of enthusiasm.

The editorial between the lines expresses a fear that stands out more boldly than that stated in actual words. It reads:

"With few contests for nominations, the Progressive vote in the county primary was light.

"But it was sufficiently generous to indicate that there is a large following of party members deeply enough interested in Progressive solidarity and Progressive principles to visit the polls and stand in line, in many instances for more than half an hour, for the opportunity to show their affiliation.

"So far as the Progressive total is concerned, it proves conclusively that the party is not one of politicians, as are the old parties. Politicians make it their business to "get out the vote."

"The vote of the Progressive party was registered without any of the entreaties that marked the election day industry of old party workers."

The son of a minister in Bartholomew county was recently declared insane because of excessive use of cigarettes. In this age no one questions the wisdom of enforcing the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to miners.

The adage, "In time of peace prepare for war," may not be recommended by the universal peace commission but it sounds very wise in view of existing conditions.

Oh no, the Progressives didn't concentrate their forces in the Marion county primary they only did a little sniping.

Republican Township Convention.

A mass convention of the Republicans of Jackson township will be held Friday evening, May 22, 1914, at 8 o'clock at the city building, Seymour, Indiana, for the purpose of nominating candidates for township trustee, township assessor, justices of the peace and constables to be voted for at the general election to be held Nov. 3, 1914.

SONS OF VETERANS MEET AT STATE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Boys of '61 Hear Patriotic Addresses by Charles A. Bookwalter and Other Speakers.

Indianapolis, May 7.—The welcoming to Indianapolis of Indiana's men of the Grand Army and the auxiliary organizations, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and the Sons of Veterans, caused Tomlinson hall to be filled with patriots last night. The big auditorium was massed with flags and above the stage hung large portraits of Lincoln, Grant and Sherman. It was a splendid gathering of Hoosier veterans and their friends. Charles A. Bookwalter, former mayor, the son of an Indiana veteran, presided. In giving personal welcome Mr. Bookwalter spoke of Indianapolis as a city made up of the sons and daughters of the other ninety-two counties of the state and he made the point that the old soldiers, therefore, were coming to a city that already belonged to them.

The band of the Knightstown Orphan's home gave a concert preceding the meeting and contributed numbers to the program. Following the invocation by the Rev. E. I. La Rue, of the Fletcher Place M. E. church, Mrs. James E. Gavin sang "The Red, White and Blue," after which Mr. Bookwalter introduced Jesse E. Martin, commander of Ben Harrison camp, Sons of Veterans, which is the host of the present encampment. Commander Martin welcomed the veterans and the auxiliaries, and declared it a matter of great pride to Ben Harrison camp to be the first Indiana S. of V. camp that had taken the burden of managing an encampment from the shoulders of the old soldiers.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS

Father's Recklessness in Finance Will Yet Ruin the Family

THE SOFT COLORS, RUFFLES AND FRILLS OF GRANDMOTHER'S DAY ARE BEING REVIVED

The most noticeable thing in the new summer frocks is the wonderfully harmonious blending of colors; the old-fashioned, faded-looking shades are being revived and also the figured materials, with creamy backgrounds and quaintly designed figures, in somewhat darker shades. Ruffles are another of the pleasing revivals; they appear on the small girl's frock and on that of her older sister, and are equally charming for both.

A pleasing dress for summer afternoons is shown in No. 8295; it is a young girl's frock with bodice and tunic of cream-colored, embroidered batiste over a foundation skirt of plain white voile. A raglan shoulder is shown, a V-shaped opening at the throat and a three-piece skirt. Batiste is priced according to the embroidery; a very good quality may be purchased for 75 cents a yard. Voile averages 65 cents a yard.

These patterns for sale by the Racket Store. L. F. Miller.

HOW WASHINGTON NEWS IS "COVERED"

250 Correspondents Members of Press Galleries and File Daily Telegraph Stories.

INTERVIEWS WITH PRESIDENT

Secretary Tumulty Always Ready to Talk but President is Never Quoted Without Consent.

By United Press.
Washington, May 7.—Everyone who has been reading the newspapers during the last fortnight has probably been wondering exactly how the newspaper men at the National Capital "cover" developments. It is worth while in this connection, to note that probably Washington has more newspaper men as residents, than any city of the world.

There are nearly 250 staff correspondents who are members of the Press Galleries. These are the newspaper men officially credited and permitted to view the proceedings in Congress from the press galleries. The rules are very strict. Only writers who daily "file stuff" by telegraph are permitted. The 250 membership does not nearly cover all those connected with newspaper work here.

The National Press Club alone numbers nearly 350 active working newspaper men among its members. Many writers of course, are not members. Then too, there are at least two hundred other men and women who do "odd jobs" of correspondence—secretaries, to senators and representatives, government employees, and the like. It is therefore, conceded that counting everybody here who does writing for the newspapers and magazines, there are at least 800 correspondents in Washington.

The working newspapermen are officially recognized by the government. Mention has been made of the arrangement at the Capital, where there is a committee of correspondents who govern the galleries. There are press rooms at the White House Executive Offices; the Navy; Post-office, Treasury, Interstate Commerce, and other Departments.

Most of the cabinet officers have definite hours on which they receive the correspondents. President Wilson sees them at least twice weekly—at 10:30 a. m. Mondays and at 2:30 on Thursdays. Of course, except with special permission, the President never is quoted directly.

Correspondents from time immemorial have always managed, however, to use what the President tells them by writing that "the President told his callers today that so-and-so" without use of quotations. Cabinet officials are always quoted, except where they make special prohibition. Of course most of the news at the White House comes from those who call there. Official news naturally is announced, but it is from the officials, prominent men, senators, representatives and army and navy officers who visit the President that the White House corps get most of their "copy."

Imitating the Capitol corps, the White House correspondents have also recently formed an association of newspapermen, for mutual protection and interest. Only authorized staff newspapermen are eligible. The White House deals with the newspapermen through this official organization.

Secretary to the President Tumulty upset all traditions when he took his job. Heretofore it has always been necessary to send in a card when the secretary was asked for an interview. Now Tumulty's door is always open and a correspondent seeking information can get his ear instantly.

Another man in official life who has upset all expectations or traditions is Secretary Bryan. The Nebraskan has had a good deal to do with newspapermen for a number of years. He has always been very full, frank and free in discussing matters with them. That is, he was full and frank and free. He isn't now. He is about the toughest proposition in a news way of anybody here.

Of course he isn't as bad as former Counsellor of the State Department John Bassett Moore. Moore could give a clam a big handicap, and beat it in the silence stakes. Daniels, himself a newspaperman, talks very freely. Garrison does likewise. McReynolds is only "fair" as a newspaper victim.

Burleigh is very much ordinary. Lane is universally popular; he's not much on the talking, but he's direct and if he says he can't discuss a thing, the newspapermen know he means it.

Houston, Redfield and Wilson are also rather inclined to soft-pedal when it comes to talking. The newspapermen at the White House "pump" the entire cabinet, and then put together the answers the members give, usually with great success in arriving at what actually happened at cabinet meetings.

COLORADO MINE GUARDS WILL GIVE UP THEIR ARMS

Major of Federal Troops Urges Strikers to Obey President's Order and Avoid Trouble.

Trinidad, Col., May 7.—The program of disarmament of contending factions in the southern Colorado strike zone was announced by Maj. W. A. Holbrook in behalf of Col. James Lockett, commanding the United States troops in the district. Mine company officials were notified that the disarming of their guards would begin tomorrow and they replied that their men were ready to surrender arms just as soon as they had received actual physical protection by the presence of Federal troops on company property.

William Diamond, union leader, speaking to a mass meeting of strikers at Starkville today attended by 300 men, declared that shipment of 300 high power rifles and 60,000 rounds of ammunition en route from New York to the United Mine Workers of America, would be turned over to the Federal troops immediately on the arrival of the consignment.

"When the United States speaks," said Maj. Holbrook, to the strikers at Trinidad, "it is a matter of serious moment. The President of the United States must be obeyed. We have soldiers and officers here to see that his command is obeyed. We do not want to, nor do we intend to shoot you men. Killing is a terrible thing, but if we must do it, then we will. We must have order. It makes no difference whether you wipe out Col. Lockett and myself; others will come to take our places."

"There is no country in the world that can obtain a larger army than the United States, though its regular standing army is small. And I dare say that upon a demand from the President there would be no man quicker than you to answer that call to duty. Now the President has called and it is your duty to repair to your respective abodes in peace and good order."

The Indiana conference of the M. E. Church will be held at New Albany September 16. Bishop Leete will preside at the sessions. Several hundred Methodist ministers will be in attendance.

Painters are at work repainting the parsonage of the First M. E. church. Other improvements have been made on the residence recently.

For a Torpid Liver.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets off and on for the past six years whenever my liver shows signs of being in a disordered condition. They have always acted quickly and given me the desired relief," writes Mrs. F. H. Trubus, Springville, N. Y. For sale by All Dealers.

Notice of Voluntary Dissolution of Corporation.

State of Indiana, Department of State.

To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting:

I, L. G. Ellingham, Secretary of State of the State of Indiana, hereby certify that the Iron Tank Elevator Company has this day caused to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Indiana, the properly signed and attested consents, statements and papers required by Section One of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, entitled "An act prescribing the method and procedure for the voluntary dissolution of private corporations and voluntary associations, and declaring an emergency," approved March 14, 1913.

And I further certify that said written consents, statements and papers so filed as aforesaid show that said company and the officers thereof have complied with the provisions of said Section One of said act and that said corporation is now in process of dissolution.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the State of Indiana at the City of Indianapolis, this 29th day of April, A. D., 1914.

L. G. Ellingham,
Secretary of State.

Sick Headache.

Mrs. A. L. Luckie, East Rochester, N. Y., was a victim of sick headache and despondency, caused by a badly weakened and debilitated condition of her stomach, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She says, "I found them pleasant to take, also mild and effective. In a few weeks' time I was restored to my former good health." For sale by All Dealers.

Miss Dora Seulke returned from Indianapolis, where she has been since Sunday on account of the serious illness of her brother, Louis Seulke, who was injured in an accident there.

Dr. M. E. Reinhart has returned to his home in Cincinnati after spending several days here with Dr. A. F. Brunow and John H. Kegler.

Care of Trees

Millions of trees die yearly from insect pests, scale and improper trimming; takes lifetime to grow a tree. Your trees on the lawn need care. Your orchards, if you want fruit, should be looked after; scientific treatment is necessary. We will be ready to do spraying on trees and shrubs.

We also handle roses, shrubs, ornamental and fruit trees, lawn seed and lawn fertilizer. Our 100 gallon power spray will be here in a few days and will then be ready to do your spraying.

"I only came to find out what you intend doing," Katherine answered, alarmed and not knowing exactly what Mrs. Slade meant. "I mustn't trouble you any longer."

"You're no trouble at all," said Mary, detaining her. "It's the doubt that troubles me. Miss Strickland, I know perfectly well you must have heard people talking. The words I want are in your mouth. Come, now, honestly tell me," she coaxed, "who is the hussy?"

"Mrs. Slade," exclaimed Katherine, haughtily, unconsciously drawing herself up.

"I ought not to have used that word,
I know," Mary drew a long breath,
"but I—you can't blame me. Why, do you know what it would mean? It would mean two Mrs. Slades here in this town or—anywhere he's known. Two Mrs. Slades after all these long, respectable years! Why, it isn't human!" and she held up two accusing fingers. "Oh, no! Every one would be asking: 'Which Mrs.
Slade is that—the old one or the new one he got?' He'd be out with Mrs.
Slade No. 2, while Mrs. Slade No. 1 was home breaking her heart. Well, they don't catch me like that! Not much! If that's what it means, there's only going to be one Mrs. Slade, and I wouldn't stoop to be that one. I fought for his name when he was free, but if he isn't now, I wouldn't haggle over a man who didn't respect me enough to—No! She could take him and his name and his money and—I'd go to where people didn't know the sight of my face. Miss Strickland, there is another woman, and you know it. Out with it, like a good girl. Just

"There, There, Don't You Cry for Me."

say it—and I'll take your advice. I'll make the best of life and go. Just say it!"

Katherine quailed before this sudden outburst. Then the hope of influencing the woman to divorce her husband spurred her on and she replied:

"Yes, there is."
"Is she—" Mary was unprepared for the admission in spite of all she had said. Her voice broke—"Is she young?"

"Yes," came from Katherine. Even at that moment it occurred to her that the situation was unparalleled—this wife asking her—"the other woman" —about herself.

"Many years' difference in our ages?"

"I think so."
"Is she pretty?"

"People say she is."

Mary experienced a sudden revul-sion of feeling.

"I don't believe it," she cried, refusing to believe what was not pleasant to believe. "Dan Slade wouldn't.
You're mistaken."

As Katherine made no reply, she went on. "But you seem to be sure?"

"I'm certain," answered Katherine, evenly and without emotion.

"Do you know her?"

The lace at Katherine's throat fluttered with her rapid breathing.

"I—yes, slightly."

"Why, Dan Slade have another woman in my old place! So that's it?" as Katherine remained silent. "I'm much obliged. I'll keep my word. He can have his divorce any way he wants it.
She can have him and his name and his money," her voice became shrill.

"Here, I'll give you something to give him," and she darted into the adjoining bedroom. "It will remind her of something she hasn't got—his youth!
His youth! His youth! See?" and she thrust before Katherine's eyes the picture of Dan Slade when they were first married, the picture she had always worn. "That's the way he looked when he was young. Tell her she can keep it." And she forced the brooch into Katherine's reluctant fingers. "She can see what she's missed!

Well, I'm done with it—and with both of them. There!" and weak from her frenzied outburst, she sank into a chair. There was intense silence for a moment. Katherine stood as if petrfied. Mary sat with brooding eyes, thinking. She was the first to speak, trying hard to be brave.

"Well, there's one comfort. It ain't as though I had any children. Who'd ever have thought we would have come to this—here in this house. If

Looked Straight Into the Eyes of Dan Slade.

I had had a baby, here's where it would have been born—and that's the real reason I stick to this house—it ain't spunk.

"We were both very young," she talked meditatively, more to herself than to Katherine. "I was awfully happy. I couldn't wish you any better, dear," and she turned impulsively to the girl, who sat amazed, breathlessly watching her, "than hoping to have a child by some young man you cared for. There's no happiness like it. But one day there was an accident in the mine and they came and told me he was hurt—and I thought, praps, he was dead—and my sudden fear for him robbed us of our little child and me of all the hope of ever—" Her voice broke with the agony of all childless good women since the beginning of time.

"See—in there," she pointed through the open door into the next room, "in the bureau drawer—the one by the window—there's all the little things I got ready years and years ago," her voice quivered piteously. "And now I'm old and there's another woman—a younger," the tears were streaming down her cheeks now and Katherine's heart ached in sympathy with her. The girl's throat was dry and her eyes blinded by tears as she repeated over and over again to her accusing conscience: "I didn't know. I didn't know."

"If we'd only had children," Mary sobbed, losing herself in complete col-apse. "Nothing counts but children.
They're all we get out of marriage when we're old. If we'd only had children, he couldn't have left me like this," her shoulders shook.

Katherine started to her feet, unable longer to bear the sight of the woman's suffering.

"Don't cry, Mrs. Slade, don't cry," she pleaded.

"My God!" Mary exclaimed. "How am I a-goin' to live out my life! I can't. I can't. I'm used to him, and now he's going to have another woman near him." There was renunciation and anguish and anger in her outburst. "And I've lived with him all these years. I can't help lovin' him," she sobbed.

Katherine watched her, aghast at the vision of a love such as she had never before realized. The hot tears filled her eyes and her lips trembled.
Unable to fight any longer, she stretched out her hand and touched the older woman gently, almost reverently.

"Oh, please—please don't cry like that," she begged. "I can't stand it.
Oh, please don't," and suddenly her emotions swept away her control—her remembrance of why she had come—of everything but this slender, sobbing little woman. She flung her arms around Mary, burying her face on her shoulder. The woman in her rose up and rebelled at what she had been about to do. Love, not of the world, mastered the worldly in her, as the tears overflowed.

"Mrs. Slade, you fight," she sobbed, breathlessly. "Never mind what! You fight! He loves you best after all.
I've seen that. Don't you give in!
You'll get him back. She's an out-and-out bad, heartless, selfish creature.
She's bad—bad, stifling every good, honest impulse for money—money!
You're right to hate it. It is a dirty thing. If he were poor she wouldn't look at him. Don't you mind and don't you cry, Mrs. Slade. You fight—fight them—all," and she loosened her arms and sank sobbing and heartbroken, into a chair, throwing her head on her outstretched arms in a perfect abandon of repentance and grief.

For a few moments the two women sobbed brokenly. Mary was the first to recover.

"There, there," she cried, patting Katherine tenderly on the shoulder,
"don't you cry for me."

Suddenly Hayes appeared in the doorway. He looked first at Mary, then at Katherine. Katherine, her face still buried, her sobs still uncontrolled, had not heard him open the door. One sight of the two women was enough to convince him that in the encounter the stronger had been defeated and that the gentle little woman whom he loved had come off the victor.

Mary stood looking from Hayes to Katherine in bewildered perplexity.
Suddenly her eyes lighted with a thought. She began to read her answer in Bob's eyes, but he turned to avoid her glance. She looked again at the sobbing girl and as she did so the conviction came to her that Katherine was the woman her husband was planning to marry. She opened her mouth as if to speak, and turned questioning again to Bob. But Hayes could not meet her eyes. Suddenly Mary pointed an accusing finger at Katherine's bowed head. "She! Oh!" she gasped.

Katherine, unconscious of the revelation that had just taken place, was still sobbing bitterly, but with sweeter tears than she had shed for many years. The sight of the girl's misery called for all the treasures of love and sympathy in Mary's nature, sweetened by long years of forgiving and self-sacrifice.

"There, there, there," she crooned, as she patted Katherine's head. Overcome with an emotion she could not control, Katherine clasped her arms about her comforter and wept softly and quietly on her breast.

Bob, too surprised to believe his own eyes, came up to her.

"Katherine!" he exclaimed.

"Oh, Bob, I'm so ashamed," Katherine confessed as she got to her feet and stumbled into his arms, crying out for forgiveness and the love she had so cruelly and so thoughtlessly flung aside.

"I understand, I understand." Bob was very gentle and forgiving as he took her in his arms.

"I love you, Bob," she sobbed. "I don't care who hears me say it. I don't care. I love you."

"Come," he said, leading her tenderly toward the door. "We'll talk it over on the way home."

SPREADING GOSPEL OF CLEANLINESS.

The scope of cleanup day in New York city is being widened.
A special hygienic program for schoolboy athletes prominent in cleaning up the town has been arranged as follows:

Go to bed at 8 o'clock after a thorough wash and a cold splash over chest and trunk.
Scrub teeth and gums well.
Have clothes and books ready for the morning.

Open bedroom windows at top and bottom.

Get up not a minute later than 7 o'clock. Go through a two minute drill and hygienic exercises. Clean face and neck and scrub hands. Finish up with a big cold splash and hard rub all over. See that feet and legs are clean and rub them hard to get them into condition.
Brush teeth and gums thoroughly.

Breakfast and all meals: No coffee, no tea. Drink milk a little at a time. Chew all food to a pulp. Ask your teacher what foods to avoid. No smoking.

Before school look yourself over.

Am I clean from head to toe?

Are all my clothes clean and in order down to the skin?

Do I stand up like an athlete?

DAUGHTER OF PRESIDENT WILSON TO WED TONIGHT

Will Become Bride of Secretary of Treasurer McAdoo—Many Guests at The White House.

Washington, May 7.—At six o'clock this evening will occur the marriage of Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest daughter of President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of Treasurer William Gibbs McAdoo.
During the day official business was suspended and only matters of grave importance received the attention of the President.

The ceremony, shorn of the resplendent formality that usually marks White House weddings, will take place in the historic blue room. Only members of the official presidential family and close relatives and friends of the Wilsons and McAdoos will be present. But the White House will be transformed into a dream of loveliness with flowers from the executive mansion conservatories.

Miss Wilson will be the fourteenth White House bride and the second in this administration. She will be the first daughter of a President to be married to a Cabinet officer.

The marriage license was obtained by I. H. Hoover, the veteran chief usher at the White House. The age of the bridegroom was given as 50 years and that of Miss Wilson at 24.
The Rev. Sylvester W. Beach of the First Presbyterian Church at Princeton, N. J., who officiated at the last White House wedding, was named as the clergyman for the occasion.

Gifts from friends continued to arrive. The Senate's wedding gift a bracelet of diamonds set in platinum, costing $1,000, was sent to the White House with a letter from Senator Martine, chairman of the committee selected to choose the present.

Miss Wilson was born in Middletown, Conn., where her father was a professor at Wesleyan University.
At fifteen she went to Raleigh, N. C., to boarding school. Later on, while her sister Margaret went in seriously for vocal study, and another sister was engaged in social settlement work in the Kensington, Pa., mill district, the bride began her art studies in Philadelphia, Pa., inheriting her ability and taste in that direction from her mother.

The bridegroom, Secretary William G. McAdoo, was born in Marietta, Ga. He was only 21 when admitted to the bar, after his studies at the University of Tennessee. He practiced his profession in Chattanooga for eight years, then moved to New York. There he conceived the project with which his name is identified —the Hudson River tunnel system, linking New York and Jersey City.
Mr. McAdoo was president of the system from 1902 to 1913.

HAMMOND GETS THE NEXT STATE WOODMEN MEETING

Largest Convention in History of Indiana Order Adjourned at Washington Wednesday.

Washington, Ind., May 7.—Hammond won over Columbus the honor of entertaining the state camp meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America in 1915. The vote was 63½ to 39½. The convention adjourned here Wednesday afternoon, it being the largest convention in the history of the Indiana order, delegates and visitors numbering more than 700 being in attendance. The following officers were elected: Consul, C. A. Osborn, Vincennes; clerk, P. J. Strack, New Albany; adviser,
John W. Gring, Laporte; escort, W.
F. Wilkinson, Newcastle; banker, George S. Parker, Anderson; watchman, M. A. Gray, Remington; sentinel, K. C. Mong, Whiting; chaplain, the Rev. J. T. Coulter, Columbus.

District delegates selected for the national meeting were: First, H. D.
Long, New Harmony; H. C. Vogel, Evansville. Second, Alonzo Spears, Logansport; H. E. Meyer, Worthington. Third, L. B. Johnson, Ireland; J. D. Clark, Salem. Fourth, Harry Stearns, North Vernon. Fifth, R. E.
Confer, Greencastle. Sixth, W. H.
Heironimus, Richmond. Seventh,

Percy J. Froyer, Plymouth.

The resolutions committee, headed by W. D. Headrick, of Indianapolis, brought in a set of resolutions indorsing John D. Volz of Indianapolis for a place on the national directory, but totally ignoring the candidacy of L. W. Otto of Crawfordsville, who is a candidate for head banker. The national administration of the society's affairs was indorsed.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa.—"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown
state of health,
had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed.
As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

FRESH AIR CLASS ROOMS FOUND TO BE BENEFICIAL

Careful Tests Made in New York and Open Air Class Rooms Are Recommended.

Washington, May 7—That school children who are taught in fresh air classes rooms advance more rapidly in their studies and make greater improvement in weight and strength than children in regular class rooms, is a conclusion demonstrated by Frank H. Mann, of New York, before the Sociological Section of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis this afternoon. The speaker reported on a series of experiments carried on jointly by the New York Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis and the Board of Education in which three groups of children were studied to note the effect of fresh air upon them. In one group, the children were placed in fresh air classes and were fed during school hours with milk and crackers morning and afternoon; in the second group, the children were placed in fresh air classes but were not fed, and in the third group, the children were left in the ordinary class room under regular conditions. Every effort was made to eliminate or equalize in the comparison such variable factors as age, home conditions, physical condition, school conditions, nativity, etc. The two groups of children in the fresh air classes were all undernourished and anemic at admission.

The results of this experiment extending from September to June, showed that all of the poorly nourished and anemic children in the fresh air classes gained in weight, red corpuscles in the blood, general nutrition, and physical tone. The gains were made for the most part independently of the home environment and of the financial conditions of the children's family, suggesting that the association between poverty and malnutrition in school children is not so close as has been commonly assumed, and that cases of extreme poverty with lack of necessary food at home are not nearly so prevalent as has been frequently stated. It was also demonstrated that, even without school feeding, fresh air classes can be run with advantage to the children of poor families, although the greatest benefit was obtained where extra feeding of children was employed.

"All lines of tuberculosis activity lead more or less directly back to the great truth that most of the implantations of this disease occur in childhood," was the declaration of Dr. William Charles White, of Pittsburgh, another speaker this afternoon, in arguing that all movements for the betterment of children should center in the anti-tuberculosis organization. Dr. White pointed out that anything which anti-tuberculosis societies did for the welfare of the child was a direct contribution to the prevention of tuberculosis. Dr. John B. Hawes, 2nd, secretary of the Massachusetts Trustees of Hospitals for Consumptives, Boston, declared that direct infection of children by their parents or other members of the family who have tuberculosis is very largely responsible for the spread of the disease. A large percentage of original infection of tuberculosis, Dr. Hawes contended, occurs in childhood.
